

What types of weather data do satellites collect?

Different satellites collect different types of data about the atmosphere, which help us monitor and forecast weather. Below are examples of the information from two different satellites. Give each a caption. Then compare them by answering the questions below.

COSMIC satellite

GOES-16 satellite

Caption:

Caption:

How are these two types of information from satellites similar? How are they different?